

Trading with Russia

Helping you comply with export and import requirements

Exporters/Importers trading with Russia need to comply with the certain certification requirements including Gost-R Certificate of Conformity , Declaration of Conformity , Hygienic Conclusion and many other permissive documents depending on the goods you are trading. Failure to present the correct certification can result in severe delays in goods clearance or penalties .

In 1993 the Russian Government introduced the GOST R certification programme for imported goods. The programme covers a wide range of products such as cosmetics, food products, toys, textiles, household electrical products and industrial equipment.

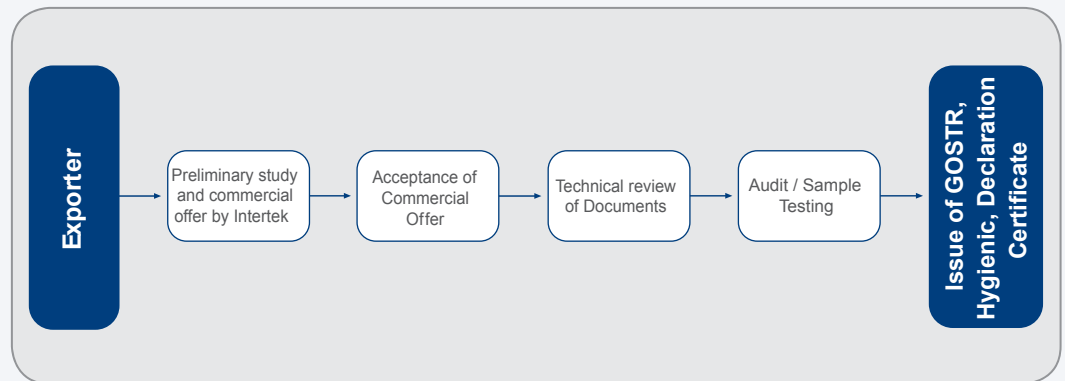

The main objectives of the GOST R certification programme are the protection of safety, health and environment of the Russian people.

Why do I need a Certificate of Conformity?

A Certificate of Conformity is required to ensure smooth customs clearance in Russia, sale of products or use within the country.

The requirements include:

- Every consignment of imported goods which contains regulated products must be accompanied by the correct Certificate of Conformity, Declaration, Hygienic Conclusion or other permissivedocuments. These certificates can only be issued by relevant accredited certification bodies.
- The Certificate of Conformity, Declaration, Hygienic Conclusion and other permissive documents are required to ensure smooth Customs clearance of shipments in Russia as well as sale or use of products within the country.
- All these documents confirm that the products comply with Russian standards and requirements for safety.
